

and it is also a great remedy for shock. Hypericum relieves pain from lacerations particularly from injuries to nerves. The pain from a burn can be relieved in a few minutes with Urtica urens. The pain following a tooth extraction can be relieved by Arnica and when given beforehand it often prevents pain.

A CASE OF PELVIC PRESENTATION

DR. JAGRAJ BIHARI LAL, B.A., DIP., S.S., M.D.H., Moradabad

29.9.53—About 8 A.M. I was informed that Mrs. P. B., 38, fat, fair and flabby being at full term, was passing liquor amni in large quantities, since an hour. Bell. 200, prescribed immediately seemed to make no impression until about two hours.

There was history of several habitual abortions, eclampsia and a mechanical delivery. As the contractions remained perfectly absent while the liquor amni gushed out unabated the case seemed to claim something very 'urgent and effective.' So I placed her on some Opium 200, dissolved in a little water, a spoonful every 10 minutes owing to the very absence of mental, moral and physical symptoms. The family members and the attending nurse appeared quite worried for their own reasons.

Finding no apparent results with the Opium I was rather convinced that the pains must somehow come around and to that end I gave her straightaway a dose of Pulsatilla CM, dry on the tongue, with the result that the pains commenced immediately and began recurring every five minutes.

The progress of labour, so far, revealed clearly that the lady faced a 'breech presentation.' The family, however, decided to call in a Lady Doctor and I acquiesced in, specially in the interest of the baby to be born anon.

No sooner the Lady Doctor had arrived and while, after examination of the case, was still sending for her instruments the lady gave a very shrill and protracted cry and the baby was born at 4 P.M. It was, of course, cynosed and the Lady Doctor had to manipulate it to establish normal respiration.
