

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

P R E F A C E.

A HOMŒOPATHIC DIRECTORY is something more than a mere List of Addresses and Qualifications of Physicians and Surgeons practising Homœopathy.

It is a List of witnesses in favour of that Reform which Homœopathy has introduced into the Art and Science of Medicine.

It affords the strongest evidence in favour of Homœopathy, as a practical Science, to which it is possible to refer, when it is considered that each and all of these Professors, Lecturers, Medallists, Physicians, Surgeons, and Apothecaries, have, after full study and careful experiment in Hospitals, Dispensaries and Clinics, abandoned the older system of Medicine, and given their adhesion to the new.

The testimony thus afforded to the great body of the profession demands, and ultimately must receive, its attention. It is a silent appeal to them, as individuals, to give Homœopathy a personal investigation. It is a "prima facie" evidence that Homœopathy is a safe and legitimate practice. Were it otherwise, so large a body of registered practitioners would not, year after year, remain its devoted adherents, using no other means to meet the acutest forms of maladies ; and it shows, by their successful professional career, that they meet with at least an average amount of victory over our common enemy, Disease.

We would particularly refer professional inquirers to the List of Members of the British Homœopathic Society, as showing that many of these gentlemen have for a great number of years practised Homœopathy. Many of them were, indeed, practising Homœopathy for several years previously even to their joining this Society.

EDITOR'S NOTICE.

THE present Directory professes to give the addresses of every recognised practitioner of Homœopathy in the British Islands. In order to ensure as perfect accuracy as possible, a printed circular has been forwarded to every Physician and Surgeon who was known to be practising as a Homœopathist. With each circular was included a stamped envelope with the name and address of the Editor, which the practitioner was requested to return by next post. Those who have never undertaken a task such as ours have no idea of the trouble and care it involves, or we think all would have given the little mite of help, thus indicated, towards the preparation of our Directory. Many of our friends responded immediately, as requested, for which they receive our warmest thanks; but a very considerable number delayed week after week, and nearly one hundred gave no response till circulars and stamped envelopes were a second time posted to them.

We advert to this subject in the hope that when our next Directory is in preparation, our correspondents will assist in lightening our labours (as well as in diminishing the expense which their delay throws upon the publishers) by responding to our first appeal. They should bear in mind that every inquiry costs twopence in postage alone, in addition to the delay and trouble it involves.

We have to thank numerous correspondents for information they have most kindly afforded us, by sending us the names of those physicians and surgeons in their neighbourhood who have recently embraced Homœopathy; of those who have removed to other localities, and of those who have died. Also for the information as to the population and salubrity, &c., of the towns and districts in which they are resident.

Many of our correspondents have sent us suggestions for which we are greatly obliged; some we have adopted, but others we have not been able to follow in our present edition. So far as we have found it possible we have acceded to suggestions which have appeared to us to express the wish of any large or influential majority. For instance, it has been very strongly and numerously urged that the Registered and Unregistered practitioners should not appear in the same list. To this wish we have acceded, though it entails some hardship upon a few most honorable men who hold degrees which are registrable. We have, however, marked these degrees prominently, so that the public may easily distinguish between those who have obtained their unregistered degrees by following the usual curriculum of study, and those who have entered the profession by unusual bye-ways.

We have also introduced a new feature, in dividing each practitioner's degrees, or honours, into those which have been registered and which are recognised by law, and into those which are simply honorary. This will enable the public still further to analyse the professional status of each individual.

Before concluding this notice we would wish to remark that the following list does not include the names of every practitioner of Homœopathy. In some cases we have been requested not to publish the names of new converts, who, although fully persuaded of the truth of Homœopathy, are not yet prepared to avow their belief openly. While we think those gentlemen are wrong in thus withholding their public testimony, as to the truth of Homœopathy, we cannot severely censure a course which the illiberality of the Allopathists has forced upon those members of our common profession.

It will be seen that we have preferred to give the list of our practitioners alphabetically throughout, not dividing that part which treats of addresses, hours of consultation and degrees, into London and Provincial lists. We think the Local list subjoined sufficient for the purpose of segregation.

In our present edition we have given no information as to Continental or American practitioners. To make such information perfect, a far greater time and expense would be required than are, at present, at our disposal. Among the other new features introduced we show those towns and districts which are yet unsupplied with Homœopathic practitioners, and which thus present excellent openings. We have restricted ourselves to towns of more than 10,000 inhabitants, except in the case of watering places. In many large towns a very influential Homœopathic clientèle exists willing to guarantee a fair minimum income of £200 to £300 a year to good respectable men having a fair knowledge of Homœopathy. We hope the knowledge of this urgent demand for Homœopathic practitioners will induce those of our number who have sons to bring them into the profession, and to use their influence with their patients and friends to educate their sons as Homœopathic practitioners wherever they show any leaning towards medicine as a profession.

We have not added a list of books and pamphlets to the names of their authors in the Address List, but have appended a list of works upon Homœopathy compiled from the catalogues of our principal publishers.

HOMŒOPATHY:

ITS RELATION TO SPECIFIC MEDICINE.*

THE history of Cinchona Bark has so direct a bearing upon the subsequent discovery of the Homœopathic art of healing, that we may fairly devote a few lines to this page of medical history.

Peruvian Bark was brought into notice by the Countess of Cinchon (hence it derives its name of Cinchona), the wife of the Viceroy of Peru, who had been cured, by its means, of an obstinate intermittent fever.

The virtues of this bark were not discovered by men of science, nor even by the accidental experiments of physicians, but by the untutored savages of South America, far off on the slopes of the Cordilleras, and was by them given to the white men who had slaughtered their fathers and usurped their country.

The Bark was brought to Europe by the Jesuits, who had acquired a knowledge of its virtues. Its introduction was immediately opposed by the orthodox members of the medical profession. This was in the year 1639. The Cinchona bark (sometimes also called Peruvian bark, or Jesuit's bark) was first fairly tried in the Roman States by order of Pope Innocent X. The trial completely proved its efficacious power.

We are told that it was coldly received by orthodox physicians, and totally repudiated by Protestants. This very odd jumble of religious as well as medical opposition may have been partly owing to its name, as from its introducers it was termed Jesuit's bark.

However, fourteen years after its first trial in Europe, i. e. in 1653, the Cinchona bark was introduced into England.

The two men who were the first to bring bark into renown in England were Cambridge men—Dr. Brady, professor of medicine, and Richard Talbor, who was an apothecary, and afterwards (in 1663) was a scholar in St. John's College.

To Talbor, more than to any other man in Europe, was the recognition of the powers of bark due. Contemporary physicians called him a "miserable quack" and a "debauched apothecary's apprentice;" but he possessed the acuteness to appreciate bark at its true value, and to apply it in the "Art of Healing" to such effect, that he cured, by the use of this newly-introduced and much-abused drug, diseases which had, up to this time, been among the most fatal in our land.

Cromwell died of ague about this time. His physicians refused to administer bark to him. It had not yet become orthodox.

But Richard Talbor continued to enforce the virtues of the Cinchona, and it led him on to wealth and fame. In 1680 he was summoned to Paris. The Dauphin (son of Louis XIV) was dangerously ill with ague. Talbor spoke confidently as to his power to cure him, promising to answer with his own life for that of the Prince. The Court physicians were furious, especially Daguin their chief. Talbor accomplished the Dauphin's restoration to health, and Louis gave him 2000 louis d'or for his secret, beside an annual pension of 2000 francs. On his return to England, Charles II knighted him, and he died full of honours and riches.

The introduction of Cinchona bark marked an era in the true "Art of Healing." The incalculable value of this discovery is apt to be forgotten in our own age, when ague has become a comparatively rare disease. The battle has been fought and won. A bare consideration of the number of lives saved will show us part of the debt we owe to the discovery of bark and its strong principle quinine. The relief it has afforded to suffering humanity, in the shortening and curing what was often a life-long disease, of a peculiarly depressing character, it is beyond our power to do more than faintly indicate.

In seven years before the use of bark, i. e. from 1629 to 1636, there died 10,484 people of ague; but as these figures, alone, fail to produce a correct impression on the mind, I may state that the deaths from ague were equal to nearly one-fourth of the whole annual mortality from all diseases. One hundred years later, we find that, in seven years, i. e. from 1734 to 1742, when bark had come fairly into use, the deaths from ague were only 31, or 1 in 3757 of the whole mortality.*

Now, if the discovery of one true specific has thus reduced the mortality in the one disease to which it is specific, it is evident that one chief duty of physicians ought to be to seek for the discovery of specifics for the cure of other well-ascertained diseases.

The untutored savage in the wilds of South America, who discovered the use of bark, has done more for the salvation of human life and the prevention of human misery than all the physicians had done for 2000 years, from the days of Hippocrates down to the middle of the seventeenth century.

* For this and much other information on cinchona, I am indebted to Dr. Russell's 'History and Heroes of Medicine,' 'Chambers's Cyclopædia,' and a Monogram of Richard Talbot's on 'Cinchona Bark.'

We must now pass over 150 years, during which many physicians had sought, and vainly sought, to discover why bark cured ague. There were theories in abundance, but they were all fruitless. The key which should discover why bark cured ague would open the hidden arcana of cure for all other diseases. But the search was fruitless, because men were still bound, more than they knew, by the Galenism and Hippocratism which went before them. So some contented themselves with fanciful explanations, while others were content with the simple fact, and ceased even to look for its rationale.

Tessier well says, that "Nature only answers when interrogated, and only answers correctly those who know how to interrogate her." The physicians who failed to discover the law of specifics, failed because they did not know how to interrogate nature.

To Hahnemann, a German physician, was reserved the honour of this discovery, which is fraught with greater practical blessings than any other which has preceded it in the "Art of Healing."

Hahnemann was born at Meissen, in Saxony, on the 10th of April, 1755. The limits of our address do not allow us to give even a slight sketch of his life. In a recent 'Cyclopædia' his character is thus summed up:—"Hahnemann is universally acknowledged to have displayed great genius, industry, and erudition. Jean Paul Richter calls him 'a prodigy of philosophy and learning.' He was a man of unblemished purity of morals, and his life, as well as his writings, was characterised by strong natural piety." *

Hahnemann was a painstaking and conscientious physician who, by much study and long travel, had striven to perfect himself in his art. Having employed to the uttermost the opportunities he had enjoyed of seeing disease under its varied types in many parts of Europe; having an intimate acquaintance with all that had been written on medicine in his own country and time; having himself translated numerous standard works on medicine from other languages, Hahnemann felt nothing but disappointment at the poverty of the means of cure which existed, and despair at the chaos which the Materia Medica of his time presented.

In the year 1790 (he being then thirty-five years of age), Hahnemann was engaged in translating Cullen's 'Materia Medica.' He was struck with the unsatisfactory attempts, in that work, to explain the action of cinchona bark in ague.

Here was an undoubted fact to work upon. BARK CURED AGUE.

It was as if a medical Archimedes had suddenly found a fulcrum on which to rest his lever. Hahnemann at once saw that the reason why men had been foiled, in their attempts to explain the action of the drug, was, that they had never observed what were the positive and natural effects of the drug upon the healthy constitution. He determined to experiment upon himself, and, while in perfect health, took several doses of powdered bark, in all amounting to half an ounce.

In a few days he experienced all the symptoms of ague.

He had interrogated nature rationally, and had received a correct answer.

* 'Chambers's Cyclopædia.' Art. "Hahnemann."

Bark, which cured ague when present, caused a disease similar to ague when administered to the healthy.

This suggested to Hahnemann's mind that it was possible that every other medicine was equally a specific for some disease, and that the key to discover the specific curative powers of a medicine was first to discover its poisonous power.

This supposition he put to the proof. By careful experiment he examined the powers of nearly one hundred drugs, and then, as opportunity offered, gave them to patients who were suffering from diseases whose symptoms corresponded to those which he had seen caused by the drugs.

The result fully answered his most sanguine anticipations. The law of specifics stood revealed, and he expressed it by the formula "Similia similibus curantur."

Let us pause for a moment to recapitulate.

The one medicine of which Allopaths had reason to be most proud was Bark. It was almost, if not altogether, the only medicine which they possessed that fulfilled the aspirations of Bacon and Robert Boyle; for, while it cured a "well-ascertained disease," it left the patient uninjured, if given in moderately small doses.

The Allopaths derived their knowledge of the virtues of Bark from the chance powers of observation of a South-American savage. For 150 years it remained almost, if not quite, their sole specific medicine, during which time they remained as profoundly ignorant of the reason why it cured ague, as was the savage who first used it.

Hahnemann discovered why Bark cured ague; and from this discovery sprung a knowledge of the Homœopathic law.

That which the majority of physicians had been content to leave as an unexplained fact, was now rationally explained. Bark cured ague because it was Homœopathic to ague.

This discovery of Hahnemann's was as much opposed by the profession at large, as we have seen that Bark was opposed by the physicians of the 17th century.

If the one specific was received with such active ill-will, can we wonder that the discovery of 100 should have excited an angry professional storm 100 times greater? In fact, so great has been the hurricane excited by this multitude of new truths introduced by Hahnemann, that we are not yet free from its fitful gusts, though they already are slowly lulling under the calming force inherent to Great Truths.

Time forbids our consideration of the many precautions, by which Hahnemann sought to avoid all possibility of error, in this examination into the positive effects of drugs; those who are interested in the subject will find them detailed in 'Hahnemann's Organon,' and in his 'Lesser Writings.'

We must content ourselves by saying that every possible source of error was seen and avoided; and that Hahnemann's labour, in conducting this truly gigantic series of experiments, was astounding from its immensity. Every deviation from health, of mind, or body, occurring in an experimenter, after taking an experimental dose, was carefully and accurately recorded, however trivial it might seem.

Homœopathy, then, is the medicine of specifics.

What Quinine and Bark are to ague, such Aconite is to inflammation, Belladonna is to sore-throat and smooth scarlatina, Bryonia to one form of rheumatism, &c., &c. But Hahnemann's discovery went further than this. Bark and Quinine do not cure every case of ague. He discovered the reason for this. Some forms of ague differ from others in a very marked degree, and it is only those agues to which Bark-poisoning is similar which yield to Bark and Quinine. Those, whose symptoms present peculiarities, require medicines which, by their poisonous dose, produce similar peculiarities.

Hahnemann's system discovers the specifics which will cure those agues that refuse to yield to Quinine.*

So with regard to other diseases, it is not a coarse and unscientific generalization (such as that which satisfies those who now consider themselves "orthodox") that satisfies the follower of Hahnemann.

It is not enough to call a disease ague and give Quinine. We must inquire whether, in all its symptoms, it corresponds to Quinine. Nor is it enough, in rheumatism, to give Bryonia. We must inquire whether the pains simulate those caused by Bryonia? and if not, we must seek some other medicine which more accurately corresponds to the disease.

This discovery of Hahnemann's must produce great results. It will tend to give all other diseases, at least, the same degree of cure and relief which Bark has been shown to have induced in ague.

Scarlet fever, for example, is wonderfully reduced in its

* As an example of the action of the Homœopathic law, I may mention a singular case of ague which came under my care in 1864. The patient had four fits of ague every day, coming on with perfect regularity at nine, at one, at five, and at nine. Quinine, Arsenic, and many other remedies had been tried in vain under Allopathic care. I had recently read Dr. Casanova's admirable experiments with Cedron. His provings showed that the characteristic feature of CEDRON was that its symptoms recurred with perfect regularity as to time. Hence I gave Cedron, which induced a rapid cure.

More recently a patient consulted me about an ague in which the fits came on at night; the different stages were not well marked; fever, chills and perspirations were mingled, but there was heat and constant dryness of the tongue and throat. Quinine and other Allopathic medicines failed to relieve him, but a few doses of Arsenicum in the 3rd dilution cured him completely. His own expression was that an hour after the first dose he began to feel better.

mortality by the Homœopathic method; and so also is inflammation of the lungs, and indeed so are all other acute diseases.

To so great an extent is this true, that the opponents to Homœopathy make it a cause for a senseless sneer, which, rightly interpreted, becomes a high testimonial to the superiority of Homœopathic practice. It is this: they say, that "Homœopaths very seldom meet with really acute cases of disease." This assertion is grounded on the very few deaths, from acute disease, which are met with in Homœopathic practice.

Now, let the opponent ask himself, "Why do Homœopaths have less acute disease than is common among the orthodox?" Is it from some miraculous interposition in their favour? Is it that Homœopathic patients are not plagued like other men? Or is it not, rather, that their system better fulfils the true indications of the Healing Art, and cures "safely, quickly, and pleasantly?"

If he refuse to admit the last, as the true explanation, he accuses his own system of causing the acute disease that is so common under his hands, according to his own testimony, but is less frequently found in Homœopathic practice.

We must leave our opponent on the horns of the dilemma on which he has impaled himself.

Subordinate to Hahnemann's great discovery of the law of specific medicines, he laid it down as a rule to give only one medicine at a time, by which he struck a blow at the mixtures of medicines so common in his day, and still fondly adhered to by many of the "orthodox." Though they have given up Theriacum and its sixty-six ingredients,* they still often prescribe a dozen or two different ingredients in a single pill or draught; on the principle that, as "accuracy of aim" is not in their power, they try to make up for it by tying, as it were, a bundle of muskets together and firing them all off at once.

Now Hahnemann's object was accuracy of aim. His specific remedy goes straight to the heart of the disease, but leaves the man uninjured. The "orthodox" too often involve patient and disease in one common catastrophe.

The second subordinate reform which Hahnemann introduced was the small dose. He justly observes; that the proper dose of a medicine is that which is sufficiently powerful to cure the disease without injuring the patient.

This surely commends itself to good sense. The size of the dose itself has been determined by experimental observation.

Thirdly. Hahnemann discovered that substances were capable of infinitesimal division to a far greater extent than had ever been imagined before, and that many substances which were inert, in mass, become powerfully medicinal when their particles were finely divided. This also has been proved by careful experimental observation.*

* The development of medicinal power, by the division of massive substances into minute atoms, is in reality little else than the giving them solubility and fluidity. The recognition of this power has been, and still is, refused by many physicians, who, if they were properly conversant with the recognised facts of their own school, would no longer be able to withhold their belief in the power developed by trituration and molecular division.

The most easy example is that of Mercury—a substance so little medicinal in mass, that a pound weight might be taken with impunity. But when finely divided by rubbing it down with chalk (or any inert substance) it becomes so powerful, that a few grains act as an irritant poison. While, when made still more fluid, as it is in the preparation called Corrosive sublimate, a small portion of a grain becomes highly poisonous.

If mechanical division, by increasing the solubility of the Mercury,

These are, in a few words, the new truths discovered by Hahnemann. The reform which they have already introduced into the medical world is immense, the opposition they have met with has been acrimonious, but not more so than our previous knowledge of the reception of new truths would have led us to expect,—not more than is commensurate with the importance of the new truth itself.

Much has been said, by the opponents of Homœopathy, of the absurdity of the small doses, and a vast amount of very infinitesimal wit has been levelled against Homœopathy, for its use of them. It would appear more absurd to use the large dose than the small, if men would rightly consider the question.

increases its power many thousandfold, as has been acknowledged by all medical authorities, why should men withhold their belief from the possibility of still further development of power by still further division? Thus chalk, coffee, and many other substances, harmless in the mass, become medicinal by trituration and minute molecular division. (There is an excellent little work on the 'Infinitesimal Dose,' by Dr. Ryan, published by Turner and Co., 77, Fleet Street.) Some of our opponents, seeing the undoubted power of our medicines, and not having the honesty to experiment for themselves, accuse Homœopathic practitioners of dishonestly using concentrated medicines under the name of infinitesimals. We have no wish to claim that all men who practise as Homœopaths are honest. Every profession has its black sheep, but we deny the truth of the assertion that the effects of Homœopathic medicines is due to their being concentrated drugs. The dishonesty lies on the side of those men who endeavour to hide their own utter ignorance of infinitesimals, by making slanderous and unfounded imputations. It is open to these men to obtain Homœopathic medicines and have them analysed.

A physician, practising Homœopathy, is as much at liberty to use strong medicines as he is to use infinitesimals, provided he gives them in accordance with the Homœopathic law; but he would soon find that he would be driven to the adoption of very small, if not infinitesimal doses as his experience increased; and if he fairly carried on his experimental observations, he would be compelled to allow that even extreme infinitesimals exert a very marked power in curing disease, when applied skilfully.

Medicine is not food, and if experiment proves that the 100th or the 1000th part of a grain is sufficient to cure a man, would it not be much more absurd to give him 1 grain or 10 grains? Should we think him a wise man who insisted on paying £1000 for a railway ticket when the proper fare was £1? Yet the two cases are perfectly analogous, with the exception that one man is only injuring his pocket while the other is ruining his health. A witty writer truly observes, "If the allopathists were accustomed to give Calomel porridges, their wrath against small doses would be consistent; but when they are themselves reduced to grains, why should they cavil at the healers, who, by experiment, have found out the value of grains of grains?"*

The fineness of the aim of Homœopathy compensates for the small size of the projectile. Suppose, like another William Tell, the physician had to shoot the apple of disease from the patient's head—would he do more wisely to choose a rifle or a monster cannon as his weapon? With the rifle he might pierce the apple and leave the patient untouched; but with the cannon ball, if he even hit the apple, he would certainly stun, if he did not kill the patient. Again the absurdity appears to lie in the large dose. Now the very essence of Homœopathic practice is, that it is specific to the disease, and that a very small dose of a well-chosen specific will suffice to cure, and has the double advantage of leaving all that part of the body which was untouched by the disease equally untouched by the medicine. The large dose would injure the patient, as well as attack the disease.

A very amusing anecdote went the round of the papers lately; it was this: An American allopathic physician was called to see a case of small-pox ; being a young man he had never seen a case of the kind before, and said to the father, " Wall, now, your boy has the small-pox ; I aint well posted up in pustules, and don't know the direct way to treat it, so I must put him on the circular method. I'll give him some medicine that'll send him into fits, and I'm a stunner at fits."

* 'The Human Body and its Connexion with Man.' By J. G. Wilkin-

Now that is a good illustration of allopathic practice. A man has a headache, the allopath isn't posted up in headaches, so he'll give him an artificial diarrhœa (by dosing him with blue pills and black draught), and then he can afterwards cure the diarrhœa. A method that is circular in more ways than one, for the purge weakens, and the weakness needs a tonic,—and then the tonic binds the bowels, and we come round again to the blue pill and black draught. The serpent, the emblem of allopathic physic, ought always to be represented biting its own tail. Always let us remember, that Allopathy means the circular method, and Homœopathy the direct method of attacking disease.

The success of Homœopathy is as certain as that truth will triumph over error. Already Hahnemann's medical disciples are to be counted by thousands, scattered all over the habitable globe, while even the President of the British Medical Association* is compelled to admit that among our patients are " prudent statesmen, astute lawyers, faithful ministers, discreet housewives," and, he might have added, a large proportion of royal and noble personages, men of letters and philosophers. The Queen of Spain has recently created Dr. Nunez (her Court physician) a marquis, and he is a Homœopath.

We were present at a recent public occasion when Dr. Rae (the Arctic explorer) stated that he had found the Homœopathic system of admirable efficacy in the inclement climate of the Arctic Circle.

From tropical India, a like testimony is borne to its wonderful power in curing cholera and other diseases, frightfully fatal under the care of the "orthodox" followers of Galen and Hippocrates.

From the Carribean Seas and the unhealthy regions round the Mexican Gulf come the praises of its beneficent power in arresting yellow fever, the scourge of these western lands. Wherever Homœopathy has been fairly tested, by men honest enough to give the requisite time and patience to acquaint themselves with its practice before essaying to put it to the trial, it has been adopted by the experimenter as one of the greatest boons conferred on suffering humanity. We do not claim to make man's body immortal; we do not claim to overcome every disease—to do so would be to arrogate the attributes of the Deity; but we do claim for Homœopathy that it cures such diseases as are curable, "safely, speedily, and pleasantly," thereby fulfilling the indication of Asclepiades, and insomuch effecting a most important reform in the Medical Art.

Honorary Secretary.—Dr. Rutherford Russell.

Mr. Leadham.

Dr. B. Metcalfe.

Vice-President, Treasurer, and Hon. Secretary (ex officio).

The Meetings of this Society are held in its rooms at the London Homœopathic Hospital, Great Ormond Street, Bloomsbury, on the first Thursday of every month during the Session, for the reading and discussion of papers and communications by members. There is an annual assembly in the month of April, May, or June of each year. Extraordinary Meetings may be convoked at any time by an order of the President and Council.

The Society has for its objects the advancement and extension of the principles of Homœopathy. It is divided into Fellows, and Ordinary, Honorary, Corresponding, and Inceptive Members. The officers of the Society consist of a President, two Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer, Council, and an Honorary Secretary, all of whom are elected annually and are re-eligible. They must all (with the exception of the Honorary Secretary, on whom it is not imperative) be Fellows. Ordinary Members must be medical men residing in the United Kingdom, and members of some recognised University, College of Surgeons, or Licensing Body, whose knowledge of Homœopathy, and experience of its principles and practice, enable them to treat their patients homœopathically. Every person desirous of becoming a candidate for election must be proposed by two members, and the name of the candidate be suspended in the Society's Hall during two meetings. All elections are conducted by ballot.

The transactions of the Society are published quarterly in a journal entitled 'Annals of the London Homœopathic Hospital and British Homœopathic Society.'

An asterisk (*) prefixed to a name indicates a Fellow; a cross (†), that the member is deceased.

CAP LXVI.

An Act to amend the Medical Act (1858).

[6th August, 1860.]

WHEREAS by "The Medical Act, 1858," it is provided ^{21 & 22 Vict.} _{c. 90} that it shall be lawful for Her Majesty to grant to the Corporation of the Royal College of Physicians of London a new Charter, and thereby to give to such Corporation the Name of "The Royal College of Physicians of England," and to grant to the Corporation of the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh a new Charter and thereby to give to the said College of Physicians the Name of "The Royal College of Physicians of Scotland," and to grant to the Corporation of the King and Queen's College of Physicians in Ireland a new Charter, and thereby to give to such Corporation the Name of "The Royal College of Physicians of Ireland;" but Provision is not made by the said Act for reserving to the said Colleges, and the Presidents and Censors, Fellows, Members, Licentiates, and Extra Licentiates thereof respectively, by their said new Names, the Powers, Privileges, Liberties, and Immunities to which they are respectively entitled by their existing Names, and Doubts have arisen whether, in case of the Acceptance by these Colleges respectively of new Charters under such altered Names respectively, the said Powers, Privileges, Liberties, and Immunities would legally attach and be preserved to them, and it is expedient that such Doubts should be removed: And whereas by an Act passed in the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Years of the Reign of King Henry the Eighth, intituled The Privileges and Authorities of Physicians in London, certain Letters Patent, dated the Twenty-third day of September, in the Tenth Year of the Reign of His said Majesty, whereby certain Physicians in London therein named were incorporated by the Name of "The President and College or Commonalty of the Faculty of Physic in London," were ratified and confirmed; and by the said Act it was enacted, that the Six Persons named in the said Letters Patent, and Two more of the said Commonalty to be chosen by them, should be called Elects, and that the said Elects should yearly choose One of them to be President of the said Commonalty, and that as oft as any of the Places of the said Elects should become void the Survivors should choose and admit One or more, as Need should require, of the said Faculty to supply the Number of Eight Persons, and that no Person should from thenceforth be suffered to practise in Physic through England until he be examined by the said President and Three of the said Elects, and have from them Letters Testimonial, except he be a graduate of Oxford or Cambridge: And whereas the main Function of the said Elects, viz., that of examining and granting Letters Testimonial, has been virtually superseded by the said Medical Act, and they have ceased to grant Letters Testimonial in accordance with the Provisions contained in the last-recited Act; and it is therefore expedient that the before-recited Provisions should be repealed: Be it enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons in this present Parliament assembled, and by the Authority of the same, as follows:

I. The Expression in the Medical Act and this Act "The Corporation of the Royal College of Physicians of London," or "The Royal College of Physicians of London," shall be taken to denote the Corporation of "The President and College or Commonalty of the Faculty of Physic in London." Interpretation of Terms.

II. Any new Charter which, under the Provisions of the Medical Act, shall be granted to the Corporation of the Royal College of Physicians of London, may be granted to them either by and in the Name of the Royal College of Physicians of London, or, as provided by that Act, by and in the Name of the Royal College of Physicians of England; and any such new Charter granted to the Corporation of the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh may be granted to that College either by and in its present Name, or, as provided by the Medical Act, by and in the Name of the Royal College of Physicians of Scotland; and any such new Charter granted to the Corporation of the King and Queen's College of Physicians in Ireland may be granted to that College either by and in its present Name, or, as provided by the Medical Act, by and in the Name of the Royal College of Physicians of Ireland. New Charters may be granted to the Colleges.

III. The granting of new Charters to the said Corporations respectively by and in the altered Names and Colleges to retain all existing Rights, notwithstanding Change of Name.

Styles respectively, as provided in the Medical Act, shall not, in respect of such Alteration of Name or Style merely, alter or affect in any way the Rights, Powers, Authorities, Qualifications, Liberties, Exemptions, Immunities, Duties, and Obligations granted, conferred, or imposed to or upon, or continued and preserved to the said Corporations respectively, and the respective Presidents, Censors, Fellows, Members, and Licentiates thereof, by the respective Charters and Acts of Parliament relating to the said Corporations respectively, or by the Medical Act, the Act to amend the Medical Act, the Medical Acts Amendment Act, 1860, and this Act respectively ; but the said Corporations respectively, and the respective Presidents, Censors, Fellows, Members, and Licentiates thereof, shall, notwithstanding any such Change of Name and Style, have and retain all such and the same Rights, Powers, Authorities, Qualifications, Liberties, Exemptions, and Immunities, and be subject to all such and the same Duties and Obligations, as if such new Charters respectively had been granted to them by and in their respective Names and Styles as then existing.

Colleges to hold Property, notwithstanding Change of Name.

IV. Each of the said Corporations shall also, notwithstanding any such Alteration of Name or Style, have, hold, and enjoy, all Lands and other Real and Personal, Heritable and Moveable Property belonging to such Corporation, either beneficially or in trust, at the Date of the granting of such new Charter, and may execute and perform any Use or Trust for the Time being vested or reposed in such Corporation.

Provisions in 14 & 15 Hen. 8, c. 5, as to

V. So much of the Act of the Fourteen and Fifteen Henry the Eighth, Chapter Five, as relates to the Elects of the said Royal College of Physicians of London, and their Powers and Functions, shall be and the same is hereby repealed, but this Repeal shall not prejudice or affect the Rights and Privileges of any Persons to whom the said President and Elects may have granted Letters Testimonial; and all Trusts which by any Deed, Gift, Devise, or Bequest are vested in, or to be executed or performed by the Elects, or some defined Number of them, shall vest in and accrue to, and be executed and performed by the Censors of the said College for the Time being as if the Name of the Censors had in such Instruments respectively been used instead of that of the Elects, and the Office and Name of the Elects of the said College shall henceforth wholly cease and determine.

VI. The Office of President of "The Royal College of Physicians of London" shall be an annual Office; and Thomas Mayo, Doctor of Physic, the now President of the said Corporation, shall remain such President until the Day next after Palm Sunday in the Year One thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, when he shall go out of Office; and the Fellows of the said Corporation shall, at a Meeting to be holden by them for that Purpose, on the same Day, and on the same Day in every subsequent Year, elect some One of the Fellows of the said Corporation in such Manner as shall be provided by any Byelaw or Byelaws made in that Behalf by the said Corporation, and for the Time being in force, to be President of the said Corporation, but the retiring President shall always be capable of being re-elected, and every President shall remain in Office until the actual Election of a new President; or in case of the Death, Resignation, or other Avoidance of any such President before the Expiration of his Year of Office, the said Fellows shall, at a

QUALIFICATIONS AND PRIVILEGES OF GOVERNORS, ETC.

Benefactors consist of Annual Subscribers of Ten Guineas, and upwards, and of Donors of Fifty Guineas and upwards, who, in addition to the privileges hereinafter mentioned, are eligible, by virtue of their contributions, to be elected Vice-Presidents of the Hospital.

Every Subscriber of Three Guineas or upwards is an Annual Governor; and every individual making a donation of Thirty Guineas or upwards is a Life Governor.

Every firm or company, paying the Subscription or Donation required to constitute an Annual or a Life Governor, may appoint a member of the firm or company, who shall stand in the position of an individual Governor.

It shall be lawful for the Board of Management to appoint any person a Life Governor in consideration of services rendered to the Hospital or to appoint as a Life Governor, the Executor of any benefactor by will.

Contributors are entitled to privileges according to the following scale, and subject to the Laws for the admission of Patients:—

1. An Annual Subscription of Ten Guineas, or a Donation of Fifty Guineas, entitles the Subscriber or Donor to have one in-patient always in the Hospital, and ten out-patients every month, and to have ten votes; and so on for every further Annual Subscription of Ten Guineas, or Donation of Fifty Guineas.

2. An Annual Subscription of Three Guineas, or a Donation of Thirty Guineas, entitles the Subscriber or Donor to have three in-patients every year, and three out-patients every month, and to have three votes; and so on in the same proportion.

3. An Annual Subscription of Two Guineas, or a Donation of Twenty Guineas, entitles the Subscriber or Donor to have two in-patients every year, and two out-patients every month, and to have two votes; and so on, &c.

4. An Annual Subscription of One Guinea, or a Donation of Ten Guineas, entitles the Subscriber to have one in-patient annually, and one out-patient always on the books of the Hospital, and to have one vote.

5. A Donation of Five Guineas entitles the Donor to the privileges, for seven years, of an Annual Subscriber of One Guinea.

6. Any Clergyman or Minister who shall make, or permit collections to be made in his Church or Chapel for the benefit of the Hospital, shall be entitled to the privilege of recommending Annually one in-patient, and monthly two out-patients, residing in his parish, or belonging to his congregation for every Ten Guineas collected.

7. Any person collecting small sums to the amount of One Guinea and upwards shall be entitled, for every Guinea collected, to privileges according to the following regulations.

The right of election of the several officers of the Hospital Medical Staff is vested in the Governors and Subscribers.

All votes are to be taken by ballot, under the direction of the Board, if a poll is demanded. Ladies, Peers, Members of Parliament, as also Governors and Subscribers, prevented by certified illness from attending the Meeting, or residing, or being at the time of the Meeting, more than ten miles from the Hospital, shall be entitled to vote by proxy; such proxies being delivered by a Governor or Subscriber at the time of voting, under the signatures of the parties granting them.

No person shall be entitled to vote at any Election or General Meeting, who has not been a Subscriber at least three months previously to such Election or General Meeting.

ADMISSION OF PATIENTS.

All necessitous persons presenting letters filled up and signed by a Governor or Subscriber entitled to give a letter of recommendation, are admissible as in-patients, and shall be admitted every Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, if, after due examination by the Medical Board, they shall be reported as proper objects to be received into the Hospital, and the House Committee shall think fit to admit them.

In the case of persons living at a distance, or unable to undergo the fatigue of personal attendance at the Hospital, for the purpose of being examined, a Medical Certificate must be sent, with the letter of recommendation from a Governor or Subscriber, addressed to the Honorary Secretary, in time to be laid before the House Committee and Medical Officers at their Weekly Meeting, for such directions as they may think fit to give for their admission or otherwise.

All poor persons, with or without a letter of recommendation from a Governor or Subscriber, applying at the Hospital on any other day, and at any other hour than the above, for relief from accidents or diseases of extreme urgency, shall be admissible as in-patients, provided there are vacant beds, on a certificate signed after due examination, by the Resident Medical Officer.

When there shall be no room for all persons recommended at one time by the Medical Board, those only shall be admitted whose cases shall appear to be the most urgent and suitable; and the other applicants, if considered to be proper objects, may be postponed and prescribed for as out-patients until they can be taken into the Hospital.

No person who is capable of paying for medical attendance, and no person being in a state of confirmed consumption, or having, or suspected to have, the smallpox, or itch, shall be admissible; and no person shall be admitted, or permitted to remain as an in-patient, who is capable of receiving equal benefit as an out-patient, or is merely requiring such rest and attention as a workhouse can supply.

Previously to the admission of any in-patient, a guarantee according to a prescribed form approved by the House Committee, shall be signed by a respectable householder.

Patients, except in cases of extreme destitution, are required, when admitted into the Hospital, to bring with them a change of linen and a towel, also a cup, saucer, and spoon, and a knife and fork, which articles will be returned to them on their discharge.

Out-patients presenting themselves for the first time are required to attend half an hour before the time fixed for the attendance of the Medical Officers, for the purpose of having their names registered.

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF

SAMUEL BASIL CARLINGFORD, M.D.

LONDON: SIMPKIN & CO.; HAMILTON & CO.

The following Extracts have been selected from numerous notices.

"Let all those who are anxious to learn the marvels effected by the 'little chest' read the 'Autobiography of Dr. Carlingford.'"—Illus. London News.

"The 'Autobiography' is well and earnestly written. There is a life-like factism about it, which keeps up the attention. The arguments in favour of Homœopathy are forcibly and fairly advanced."—Monthly Hom. Review.

"An ardent friend of Homœopathy—has here interwoven in a very readable tale the claims of that system."—The Friend.

"Has a right to claim attention as the first medical novel that has fallen into our hands."—The Churchman.

"Contains some very pleasant reading in a light gossiping style."—London Mirror.

"A second edition of a book just now likely to be read with more than usual interest, seeing that it deals with Homœopathy, which has been much spoken of in connection with the Cattle Plague."—Illustrated London News (second notice).

"We hail with much pleasure a second edition of this charming volume. Whether it be as it professes an autobiography or a work of fiction, matters little. That it should in so short a period as eighteen months have run through one edition, is 'evidence enough of the interest it has created for itself.'"—Western Morning News.

"Abounds in lively and interesting discussions, and in sketches of nature truthful; while the delineations of character are marked by purity and power."—Cornish Telegraph.

"A work which none can peruse without interest, few without profit, while some will, with ourselves, be frequently reminded of one whose loss we are now deploring—the amiable and accomplished Frederika Bremer."—Torquay Times.

DEGREES.

THE Homœopathic Medical College of Pennsylvania being in the receipt from abroad, especially from England, of numerous applications for the degree of Doctor of Medicine, deems it prudent to give the following notice, as well for the information of all persons interested as to save them unnecessary trouble.

The College can grant its degrees to such persons only as have complied with the conditions specified in its charter, and who possess the qualifications usually required of candidates for the degree of M.D. in other medical colleges in this State, and also a knowledge of Homœopathy.

The applicants must have been Students of Medicine for at least three years, and have attended two full courses of instruction in this institution, or one course here in case they have attended one or more full courses in another respectable Medical College.

Those who are already graduates in Medicine or Surgery, or who have been for some years reputedly engaged in the practice of Homœopathic Medicine, may be deemed exceptional cases and subjects of special consideration on the part of the Faculty.

Applicants from England are hereby advised that Dr. Wilson, M.D., No. 22, Brook Street, Grosvenor Square, W., London, has accepted the appointment of Examiner and sole representative of our College in England, and that all applications should be made to him, or, if originally made here, they will be referred to him.

In the Third Number of the Hahnemannian Monthly, October, 1865, may be found Dr. Wilson's letter of acceptance, and his statement of the conditions and subjects of examinations.

CONCENTRATED OR FLOUR OF MEAT.

The CONCENTRATED MEAT COMPANY are now prepared to supply the following articles of Diet, all of great public utility, manufactured in accordance with the process recently devised by Dr. HASSALL, and with the advantage of his advice and assistance.

This process is as remarkable for its simplicity as for its efficiency, and it consists mainly in the removal of the water of the meat, and this at such a moderate temperature that the whole of the constituents of the meat, possessing their full nutritive properties, are retained, so that every pound of the meat thus prepared is equivalent to nearly four pounds of lean fresh beef.

The meat is subsequently reduced by machinery to a fine powder, and is finally brought to a condition in which it furnishes a highly valuable material for many Dietetic and Culinary purposes.

CONCENTRATED OR FLOUR OF BEEF.

For the Speedy Preparation of Beef Tea and Soups.

One pound of this beef is warranted to contain all the nutritive constituents and properties of nearly four pounds of English-fed lean Beef, of the first quality, free from bone and visible fat.

The Beef being reduced by machinery to a fine state of division, and having already been subjected to the action of a certain amount of heat, but little cooking is required, and Beef Tea and Soups may be prepared from it in the course of a few minutes, and these possessing much higher nutritive properties than are to be obtained in any other way, since they contain the whole of the constituents of the Beef, the most important of which are rejected in the ordinary method of preparing these articles and hence are lost to nutrition. In Packets, 2s. 6d., 5s., and 10s.

CONCENTRATED MEAT MIXTURE for SOUPS.

For the Speedy Preparation of Soups, and containing all the requisite Vegetables and Seasonings.

One pound of this article is warranted to contain all the nutritive constituents and properties of nearly four pounds of lean fresh Mixed Meat of the first quality, free from bone and visible fat, including, amongst other kinds, Veal, and Beef, together with the requisite Vegetables and Flavouring Substances. In Packets, 2s. 6d., 5s., and 10s.

CONCENTRATED MIXED MEAT FOOD,

FOR CHILDREN, THE AGED, AND INVALIDS.

For the Speedy Preparation of a highly nutritious Food, of easy digestibility.

This Food consists of a mixture of Beef, Veal, and other Meats, together with Farinaceous matter; and one pound of it is more than equal to two pounds of the lean fresh Beef. In Packets, 1s. 6d., 3s., and 6s.

CONCENTRATED MEAT COCOA.

For the Preparation of a highly nutritious Breakfast Beverage.

One pound of this article is warranted to contain, in addition to the Cocoa and other ingredients, the nutritive constituents and properties of nearly two pounds of the lean of fresh Beef. In Packets, 1s. 6d., 3s., and 6s.

CONCENTRATED MEAT BISCUITS.

Forming a highly nutritious and easily digestible article of Diet, especially adapted for Luncheon.

One pound of these Biscuits is more than equal to one pound of lean fresh Beef, containing, in addition, three quarters of a pound of other nutritive constituents.

All orders are to be addressed to the CONCENTRATED MEAT COMPANY, the Cross Keys Meat Factory, High Street, Marylebone, W.; or to Messrs. Crosse and Blackwell, Barclay & Sons, Newbery & Sons, Savory & Moore, Turner & Co., &c.—Terms, Cash on Delivery.

NEW AND IMPORTANT FEATURES.

The Policies of the "Life Investment" Company are not merely Life Assurance Policies, but secure investments of money, the benefit of which will be derived by the Investor himself, should he live to middle life, or by his family should his decease occur at an earlier period.

LIFE POLICIES.—These will be payable before death, without extra Premium. By this peculiar system, an annuity can be granted to the widow, and the sum assured paid to the children at her death. Or should the assured live to a certain age, he can receive the amount assured by his Policy, or an annuity during his life, and at his death the amount in full will be paid to his family; or he can have an annuity of from 9 to 14 per cent. Thus at the same time providing for his own comforts in old age, and protecting his family should he be prematurely removed.

INVALID LIVES.—Invalid Lives have, as a rule, been rejected by Life Assurance Companies. This Company has, however, adopted a new plan, making the required additional Premium a charge upon the Policy, and not upon the ordinary Premium—a system which is deemed capable of extended application.

INDISPUTABILITY.—This is a most important feature, for no doubt ought to exist in so momentous a matter as the provision to be secured to a family after the death of its protector.

TEMPORARY SUSPENSION OF PREMIUM.—A portion of the profits will be set aside to form a fund for the assistance of person who, through misfortune or illness, may not be able to continue the payment of their Premiums.

PAID-UP POLICY.—Under this head a person can discontinue absolutely the payment of Premiums after five years, and a new Policy will be granted for a liberal amount, which will be an absolute reversion payable at death, and unincumbered by any further payment of Premium.

EDUCATIONAL ASSURANCE.—A system by which, after eight or more small Annual Payments, Parents will be entitled to receive the amount of £10 and upwards, for a period of six years, either for School or College purposes. This most desirable arrangement secures to the Children a liberal education, however limited the means of the Parent; and by a proper application of it, the largest family can be educated at the least possible inconvenience. Should the Child die before the Annuity commences, the whole of the money paid will be returned.

CONDY'S PATENT FLUID

Is harmless and inodorous, and is adopted by the leading Hospitals, the India Government, Her Majesty's Emigration Commissioners, and nearly all departments, with the exception of the Admiralty.

Removing all impurity by means of NASCENT OXYGEN, nature's only purifying agent, it imparts that peculiarity which is characteristic of FRESH COUNTRY AIR to the atmosphere of Rooms, such as Drawing-rooms, Ball-rooms, Dormitories, Bed-rooms, &c.—a fact of the greatest importance to the heads of families, schools, and public institutions.

It furnishes a test for organic matter in impure air and water, and the means of rendering them free from such impurity. In the case of water, risk of injury to the health is thus obviated, and a freshness imparted which is most agreeable to the traveller or invalid. On shipboard, in hot climates, and in many country districts where drinking water is frequently dangerously impure, this property has been found of inestimable advantage.

It destroys all disagreeable odours, restores to purity infected linen, and does not stain such linen when properly diluted for use.

It prevents the spread of contagion, and from its entirely innoxious and unirritating character, is the only proper disinfectant of the living tissue.

Game, and food of all kinds, which have become tainted, are restored to perfect soundness by its employment, and its habitual use in larders or dairies prevents decomposition.

It disinfects and purifies everything—solid, liquid, or aeriform. One gallon makes 200 or 300 gallons adapted for use.

In Bottles (green), 6d., 1s., and 2s.; or in bulk, 5s. per gallon: (crimson), stronger and purer, 1s., 2s., and 4s.; or in bulk, 10s. per gallon. Bottles, 8d. per gallon in bulk.

CONDY'S PATENT FLUID, diluted, forms a perfect remedy for wounds and local diseases of domestic animals and birds. In the hands of veterinary surgeons and breeders of stock its curative properties have been found of incalculable value.

CONDY'S PATENT HEALTH POWDER disinfects by the same agency, viz., NASCENT OXYGEN. In Bottles, 1s., 1s. 6d., and 3s.; or in 1 cwt. Casks, 36s.

Prize Medal, International Exhibition, 1862.

CONDY'S PATENT OZONIZED WATER is an eminently scientific substance, possessed of health-preserving properties, DUE ONLY TO OZONIC OXYGEN, and is specially adapted for the purification of drinking water and for the Bath and Toilet. Its use is attended by a sensation which has been aptly described as "the perfume of purity." Being perfectly innoxious and tasteless, a few drops make a most refreshing and invigorating addition to the tumbler of plain drinking or soda water, from which they remove all traces of soluble organic matter—a fact of infinite importance to the voyager or the invalid. Where employed for the Toilet, Bath, &c., it removes from the mouth all impure and foreign tastes and odours, whether arising from natural or artificial causes, such as the practice of smoking, and counteracts the irritation and morbid effects of carious teeth. It purifies and softens the skin, and tends to promote a healthy state of the whole body, by removing all secretions, and restoring a wholesome condition. In Stopped Bottles, 2s. and 3s. 6d.
