Homeopathy in Sydney.

(Some of the Following Items Appeared in our Late Editions of Saturday.)

The "Homeopathic World" contains an article by Mr. Frederick Kopp on what he terms " " model pusrmacy" in Sydney. The contributor writes that a visit to the pharmacy writes that a visit to the pharmacy of Messrs. Fisher and Company, 337 Georgestreet, certainly does not give one the impression that homocopathy is practically dead and a thing of the past. A more than life-size bust of the immortal Hahnemann occupies a prominent position in the large front window, position in the large front window, and is surrounded by medicine chests medicines homospathic variou: and and preparations. The thanks of the homosopathic medical profession in Sydney are undoubtedly due to Mr. A. M. Hart, the manager, as his strong and convincing arguments in favor of the Hahnemann theory and practice of medicine have been the direct cause of not a few of the visitors to the pharmacy becoming converts to homeopathy. Phirating ever for fresh knowledge he has spared neither money nor pains in obtaining it, and any new homosopathic literary production is sure to receive a hearty welcome at his to receive a hearty well-stocked library hands, as his well-stocked library of books bears ample witness. All prescrip-tions are dispensed in the dispensing-room at the rear of the shop. Here everything looks as his of bright, clean, and cheerful, and great care is taken that each drug used is of the purest description, and true to name and potency. A number of plants used in preparing the tinctures are grown by Mr. Hart himself, thus doubly insuring their purity and strength. A large number of homeopathic literary works are sold an-nually by this firm, and their tinctures and pilules are sent and used all over the colony.
